Deer Creek Open To Campers; Hint Of Total Development

The Clarks Run Campground at Deer Creek State Park was opened Friday morning by federal, state, and local officials including State Representative Myrl Shoemaker of the 88th District of Ohio.

In dedicating in 232 Class A camping sites to the people of the district, Shoemaker hinted at the possibility "of total development of Deer Creek State Park."

Announcement of those plans, he said, would hopefully come in the "near future," reviving speculation of the possibility of a lodge for the state park.

Col. Orland K. Hill, deputy district engineer of the Huntington, W. Va., district of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, called the camping area and its facilities "splendid."

His organization contracted with Ranney Water Systems of Columbus for construction of the camping area at a cost of $1,123,922. It was turned over by the Corps of Engineers to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

In lauding the facilities available to campers, Col. Hill noted that it meets the needs of all campers, even handicapped ones. There is a specially-equipped washroom for the handicapped.

The camping sites, all with electricity available, rent on a first-come, first-served basis for $2.50 a night.

Included on the grounds are four washrooms with showers and laundry facilities, six modern restrooms, a trailer waste station, and a parking lot for 42 cars and 20 cars with campers.

Of the 232 Class A sites available, all but 80 were opened to campers Friday. The others have not been opened due to problems with surface water drainage. They will be ready in about a week.

Ohio Natural Resources Director William Nye, who served as master of ceremonies at the ribbon-cutting, noted that the state park is less than an hour's drive for more than 2 million Ohioans.

The ribbon opening the camping area was cut by Floyd Arledge of Route 4, Circleville, a member of the Roundtown Roamers.

Others in the audience were Rod Cooper, chief of the Parks and Recreation Department; Fayette County Commissioners Bob Mace, Herb Farrell, and Ray Warner; Mrs. Jean Ankrom, manager of the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce; Cecil Pennington of the Mt. Sterling Chamber of Commerce; James Dunn of the Washington C. H. Chamber; William Davidson and Joe Lewis of the New Holland Chamber; William Hughes, acting manager of the Corps of Engineers at Deer Creek; Bob Heinberger, Central District field director of the Ohio Chapter, National Campers and Hikers Assn.; and Roger O'Dell, acting park manager.

Lyle Hanawalt, the first camper to register for a site, was given special recognition. He sold about 100 acres of land to the park for development.

Nixon Makes Radio Speech On Economy

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon makes a noontime radio address to the nation today on economic problems and how he intends to cope with them, including the naming of a White House economic coordinator.

Deputy Secretary of State Kenneth Rush, Nixon's onetime law professor, is expected to get the key post with responsibilities for making economic policy recommendations to the President.

Nixon decided to bypass his regular economic advisers and newly named Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon in picking Rush, administration sources said.

The President goes on the air live from his bayside study at the Florida White House at 12:07 p.m. EDT today. He is here for a long holiday weekend and may make a Memorial Day radio broadcast as well.

Inflation during the first three months of 1974 soared to an 11.5 per cent annual rate, higher than expected and the highest rate since the first quarter of 1961 when it reached 15 per cent.

Press Secretary Ron Ziegler said the President plans organizational changes in the White House, including the naming of an economic coordinator to take over duties previously handled by former Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, who also was Nixon's special assistant for economic affairs.

The expected designee, Rush, 64, had been with the Union Carbide Corp. from 1937 to 1969, and was its president when his onetime Duke University law student Nixon picked him to be ambassador to West Germany.

In February 1972, Nixon named Rush deputy secretary of defense and then shifted him to a similar post in the State Department in November 1972. A native of Walla Walla, Wash., Rush taught Nixon when he was an assistant professor at Duke Law School from 1936 to 1937.

Weather

Cloudy and cool today, tonight, tomorrow, and Memorial Day with little chance of rain. Highs are expected to be in the upper 60s, with the low both nights in the upper 40s. There is a 20 per cent chance of rain today and tonight, a 10 per cent chance Sunday, and little chance Monday. High Friday 73; low, 51.

Supreme Court Gets Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether President Nixon may withhold Watergate evidence subpoenaed for the trial of former White House assistants.

The Watergate special prosecutor asked the high court Friday to assume jurisdiction in the refusal of the White House to turn over tapes and documents for the Watergate coverup trial.

Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, pressed for time because the trial is scheduled to start Sept. 9, is seeking to bypass the Washington circuit court.

In other Watergate developments:

—Preparations are underway in Washington for the trial of former presidential assistants John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson and three others accused in the September 1971 break-in at the California office of Dnael Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

—House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. said he will propose next Thursday that the impeachment panel make public.

—Vice President Gerald R. Ford said Nixon's refusal to give the Judiciary Committee any more Watergate material may result in the President's impeachment. "It seems to me that a stonewall attitude isn't necessarily the wisest policy," Ford said in an interview with ABC News.

—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said it is becoming increasingly difficult to defend Nixon in the Watergate scandal. However, Goldwater said he can see no circumstances under which he would go to the President and ask him to resign.

In Judge Gerhard Gesell's court Friday, White House lawyer James D. St. Clair asked that subpoenas seeking notes and memos Ehrlichman and Colson left behind when they resigned be quashed.

When informed that the evidence sought by lawyers for Ehrlichman and Colson would not be provided, Gesell said sternly:

"We're down to the point where the President must decide his responsibilities under the laws of this country."

St. Clair said Nixon was claiming executive privilege, or the right to keep secret his conversations with assistants, and was unable to promise that the defendants or prosecutors in the case could have even limited access to the evidence described in the subpoenas.

"I don't have the authority to waive that privilege," said the President's lawyer.

"There is no privilege," said Gesell. "It is not for the President to determine what documents should be produced; it is for this court to decide. 'I want those documents produced.'"

In the break-in trial, scheduled to start June 9, the five men are accused of violating the civil rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist at the time the former Pentagon analyst leaked the Pentagon Papers to the press.

Indicted along with Ehrlichman and Colson were G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio A. Martinez.

In the Watergate cover-up case, Jaworski asked the high court to resolve the subpoena issue during the court's current term, scheduled to end late next month.

In the case, Colson, Ehrlichman, former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and three others are accused of obstructing justice.

Ford Against Nixon Hard Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford has warned the White House publicly that President Nixon's refusal to give the House Judiciary Committee any more Watergate material may result in the President's impeachment.

Ford's warning, in a television interview with ABC correspondent Bill Zimmerman broadcast Friday night, confirmed earlier indications that the vice president was concerned over Nixon's hardening attitude toward the House impeachment inquiry.

"It seems to be that a stonewall attitude isn't necessarily the wisest policy," Ford said.

Asked if he thought Nixon's refusal to give any more material might be the factor that turns a closely divided House against Nixon, Ford said, "I want the House of Representatives to make its judgment on the facts, not on some emotional, institutional issue."

For weeks, Ford has urged moderation and compromise, both in his public statements and presumably in his private conversations with the President.

On Wednesday, Nixon sent the Judiciary Committee a letter declaring he would give no further Watergate material. That night, Ford said in Wilmington, Del., that if the panel finds that additional tapes would be relevant to their inquiry, "I hope the President will give it to them, the sooner the better."

The next morning, with little advance notice, the President called Ford in for a talk that was followed by more than the usual reluctance to say what was discussed.

Ford appeared to be in an unusually somber mood as he arrived in New York Thursday night, and an aide said he was "a little uptight" because his schedule had been thrown off by the meeting with Nixon.

Strip Mine License Rejection Upheld

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Reclamation Board of review has upheld the rejection of coal strip mining licenses sought by Blue Creek Coal of New Philadelphia.

Applications for the two separate licenses had been turned down earlier on grounds Blue Creek had not complied with state reclamation laws. The review board said Friday that strip mine operators must comply with Ohio law if they wish to continue operations in the state.

Kissinger Makes Last Minute Bid For Mideast Truce

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Delayed by a bomb scare aboard his official plane, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Damascus today in a last-minute bid to negotiate a separation of Israeli and Syrian forces.

Kissinger won tentative Israeli agreement Friday on a key disengagement issue, and American officials say Kissinger will end his shuttling between Israel and Syria this Sunday whether or not a disengagement pact is agreed upon. He is expected to return home via Bonn and London.

The secretary's 11th trip to Damascus on his current Middle East tour was delayed one hour by a telephoned bomb threat against his U.S. Air Force Boeing 707 at David Ben-Gurion Airport near Jerusalem. Kissinger had not boarded the plane when the threat was received.

Security men found no bomb aboard the craft, which is kept under 24-hour guard, and Kissinger was cleared to leave.

After Kissinger ends his shuttling, American technical experts may remain behind if necessary to assist with the fine points of a disengagement agreement.

In a three-hour session Friday with Israeli negotiators, Kissinger got a favorable reaction on an undisclosed American compromise plan for thinning out Syrian and Israeli forces along the projected cease-fire line. The issue is one of two stumbling blocks remaining in the way of a disengagement agreement.

But Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban made clear that Israeli cabinet approval of Kissinger's suggestion will hinge on the response the secretary receives today from Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Agreement on the thinning out of forces would leave just one major area of dispute: the size and specific responsibilities of the United Nations force that would patrol a buffer zone between the Israeli and Syrian armies.

Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres said such issues as the location of the disengagement line, an exchange of prisoners and recovery of bodies of the October war dead have all been settled.

On the Israeli political scene, Premier-designate Yitzhak Rabin announced that he had formed a new government to replace that headed by Golda Meir, who has resigned. The makeup of his cabinet was not expected to be announced until tonight.

The government will rest on a coalition of parties that will have a two-seat majority in the Knesset, or Parliament. The government will have a dovish orientation, and Eban and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan have said they will not serve on it.

Health Insurance Legislation Rapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for Blue Cross-Blue Shield said Friday the companies will lose their nonprofit status if they become casualty insurance firms to offer no-fault automobile coverage.

Spokesman Edward Lechner has said Ohio's proposed legislation will be contrary to a federal mandate if the recently passed U.S. Senate no-fault bill becomes law.

"The U.S. Senate bill gives consumers free choice, the right to use their group health insurance to meet no-fault requirements, if it is less expensive than alternatives. But the Ohio Senate bill does not."

Lechner said the bill states that only casualty insurance companies can offer no-fault coverage.

Health insurance companies can write no-fault only if they become licensed as casualty insurers, Lechner said. He said the companies would have to give up their nonprofit status to become licensed as casualty companies.

Under no fault insurance, accident victims get benefits without regard to fault, providing damages don't exceed a certain level. Lawsuits in most cases can't be filed until damages reach the so-called "threshold" amount.

"No-fault insurance is accident and health insurance and has nothing to do with property damage," Lechner said. "Under the Ohio Senate bill, existing health insurance cannot be used for hospital and medical expenses resulting from an auto injury. Instead, the new no-fault coverage purchased from an auto insurer must be used." William C. Cook, president of the Ohio Insurance Federation, said at a news conference Friday Blue Cross participation under the no-fault insurance bill would result in "monumental confusion."

"For anyone carrying the Blue Cross coverage, the auto contract will, of necessity, be divided into two parts, so that major loss will involve a casualty company for the liability and Blue Cross for the 'nofault' portion," Cook said.

Ohio Feeder Pig Show-Sale Set

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

There'll be both youth and adult activities at Ohio's first Feeder Pig Show-Sale-Festival to be held Saturday, June 1. This event, featuring Ohio's feeder pig industry, will be held at the Wayne County Fairgrounds in Wooster.

"The show's objective is to stimulate increased production of quality feeder pigs," reports Gene Isler, Extension Specialist, Animal Science, The Ohio State University.

The show also will provide an opportunity for all segments of the feeder pig industry to come together for an exchange of ideas. The day's program will feature a feeder pig grading demonstration, the state wide show, a judging contest for youth and adults, a feeder pig sale, a ladies' program, and an afternoon educational program with talks on the various phases of feeder pig production.

Exhibits of equipment, feed, veterinary supplies, and other swine related industries will be on display. A pork chop barbecue will be the feature of the day and an evening pork festival is being held in conjunction with this event.

Entered in the show are 300 feeder pigs from Ohio's top commercial and purebred herds. These pigs will be sold at auction and will include some outstanding animals suitable for 4-H and F.F.A. projects. Pigs will sell both as individuals and in groups.

Any Ohio swine producer is eligible to enter the show, competing for a total of $2,200 in prize money. A show entry will consist of six pigs with not more than two of them being gilts. Pigs weighing 45 to 75 pounds will compete in two weight divisions. The show will also have separate divisions for commercial producers and purebred producers. No one registering an animal in the last 12 months is eligible to compete in the commercial division.

All in attendance may try their skill in a feeder pig judging contest.

Separate divisions are planned for youth 13 and under, youth 14-18, adult women and adult men. Thirty trophies will be awarded to winners of these divisions.

Show judge and keynote speaker for the afternoon program will be Rolland "Pig" Paul from Willow Springs, Missouri. "Pig" was the first executive vice-president of the National Park Producers Council. He is currently a swine producer and feeder pig dealer in the Ozarks of Southern Missouri. He brings a wealth of "hog experience" and an interesting tale of how the Ozarks became the feeder pig capital of the world.

Other items on the agenda include a "Feeder Pig and Feed Price Outlook" by Herb Hadley, Extension Economist at Ohio State, and "Feeder Pig Management Tips" by Herb Barnes, OSU Extension Animal Science Specialist. Tom Price of Producers Livestock Association will be presenting a feeder pig grading demonstration.

A special ladies program will be another feature of this "family affair." On the ladies program will be Miss Jayne Hager of the National Livestock and Meat Board. She will present morning and afternoon programs on pork serving. Also planned is a tour to the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's rose and rhododendron garden, and a pig-suede style show.

The Northeast Ohio Pork Producers and Porkettes are going all out in planning a big Pork Festival. Included will be an evening pork chop barbecue, greased pig contest, pork cook-out king contest, entertainment, and other family activities. Admission is free with the program starting at 10:00 a.m., and lasting through the evening.

Sponsors of the Feeder Pig Show-Sale-Festival are Pfizer Agricultural Division, Beuhler Food Markets, Ohio Pork Producers Council, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, and the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service.

Check Field Crop Drainage For Adequacy

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

What is adequate drainage? Soil and crop drainage improvements are considered complete when (1) sub-surface drainage improvements are at the depth and spacing recommended in the Ohio Drainage Guide, 1973; (2) there are no surface depressions to collect any pond water; and (3) the outlet has sufficient depth and capacity to provide the degree of drainage desired, says Byron H. Nolte, Extension Agricultural Engineer, The Ohio State University.

Nolte points out that many tile drainage systems in Ohio were installed more than 50 years ago. In some cases, these systems may need major repair, upgrading or replacement, he says. Where fields already have some drainage improvements, the owner or manager needs to determine if further improvements are justified. Factors to consider are soil, crops to be grown, surface drainage conditions, sub-surface drainage, and adequacy of drainage outlets, Nolte explains.

The degree of drainage is illustrated by research results for the Toledo soil series, he says. Following a rain, research showed that the water table dropped about 0.5 feet per day with good surface drainage (graded to a 0.2 percent slope) and a 56-foot tile spacing. However, where no surface drainage was provided and all water had to be removed by subsurface tile, a tile spacing of 32 feet was required to lower the water table 0.5 feet per day (24 hours). In general, tile spacing can be 50 percent greater, when good surface drainage is provided, than when all water must be removed by the tile drains. For example, if tile spacings of 50 feet are recommended with poor surface drainage, you can expect about the same degree of drainage with 75-foot tile spacings and good surface drainage. If you have 100-foot tile spacings and good surface drainage, you have about the same degree of drainage as a 67-foot tile spacing and poor surface drainage.

Nolte says a field has good surface drainage when each field row slopes throughout its length toward a field surface drain (ditch) and the drain carries the surface water to an outlet ditch.

A field with depressions that collect water has poor surface drainage. The economic importance of a few surface depressions in a field depends on how much the depressions may affect yield and whether these water collecting depressions delay tillage, planting, and harvesting operations for the entire field.

Normally, fields with less than 0.2 percent slope (0.2-foot fall per 100 feet of row length) require the use of a land plane every one to four years to maintain good surface drainage.

Recommended drainage improvements are listed for all Ohio soils in the Ohio Drainage Guide. About 300 soil series found in Ohio are placed into 22 classifications for which drain depth and spacing recommendations are provided, Nolte says.

The longest animal ever recorded is the giant jellyfish (Cyanea arctica), which is found in the northwest Atlantic Ocean. One specimen washed up on the coast of Massachusetts, c. 1865, had a bell 7½ feet in diameter and tentacles measuring 120 feet.

Mow often enough so you do not cut off more than one-half the leaf surface.

Ohio Feeder Pig Show-Sale Set

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

There'll be both youth and adult activities at Ohio's first Feeder Pig Show-Sale-Festival to be held Saturday, June 1. This event, featuring Ohio's feeder pig industry, will be held at the Wayne County Fairgrounds in Wooster.

"The show's objective is to stimulate increased production of quality feeder pigs," reports Gene Isler, Extension Specialist, Animal Science, The Ohio State University.

The show also will provide an opportunity for all segments of the feeder pig industry to come together for an exchange of ideas. The day's program will feature a feeder pig grading demonstration, the state wide show, a judging contest for youth and adults, a feeder pig sale, a ladies' program, and an afternoon educational program with talks on the various phases of feeder pig production.

Exhibits of equipment, feed, veterinary supplies, and other swine related industries will be on display. A pork chop barbecue will be the feature of the day and an evening pork festival is being held in conjunction with this event.

Entered in the show are 300 feeder pigs from Ohio's top commercial and purebred herds. These pigs will be sold at auction and will include some outstanding animals suitable for 4-H and F.F.A. projects. Pigs will sell both as individuals and in groups.

Any Ohio swine producer is eligible to enter the show, competing for a total of $2,200 in prize money. A show entry will consist of six pigs with not more than two of them being gilts. Pigs weighing 45 to 75 pounds will compete in two weight divisions. The show will also have separate divisions for commercial producers and purebred producers. No one registering an animal in the last 12 months is eligible to compete in the commercial division.

All in attendance may try their skill in a feeder pig judging contest.

Separate divisions are planned for youth 13 and under, youth 14-18, adult women and adult men. Thirty trophies will be awarded to winners of these divisions.

Show judge and keynote speaker for the afternoon program will be Rolland "Pig" Paul from Willow Springs, Missouri. "Pig" was the first executive vice-president of the National Park Producers Council. He is currently a swine producer and feeder pig dealer in the Ozarks of Southern Missouri. He brings a wealth of "hog experience" and an interesting tale of how the Ozarks became the feeder pig capital of the world.

Other items on the agenda include a "Feeder Pig and Feed Price Outlook" by Herb Hadley, Extension Economist at Ohio State, and "Feeder Pig Management Tips" by Herb Barnes, OSU Extension Animal Science Specialist. Tom Price of Producers Livestock Association will be presenting a feeder pig grading demonstration.

A special ladies program will be another feature of this "family affair." On the ladies program will be Miss Jayne Hager of the National Livestock and Meat Board. She will present morning and afternoon programs on pork serving. Also planned is a tour to the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's rose and rhododendron garden, and a pig-suede style show.

The Northeast Ohio Pork Producers and Porkettes are going all out in planning a big Pork Festival. Included will be an evening pork chop barbecue, greased pig contest, pork cook-out king contest, entertainment, and other family activities. Admission is free with the program starting at 10:00 a.m., and lasting through the evening.

Sponsors of the Feeder Pig Show-Sale-Festival are Pfizer Agricultural Division, Beuhler Food Markets, Ohio Pork Producers Council, Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, and the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service.

Check Field Crop Drainage For Adequacy

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

What is adequate drainage?

Soil and crop drainage improvements are considered complete when (1) sub-surface drainage improvements are at the depth and spacing recommended in the Ohio Drainage Guide, 1973; (2) there are no surface depressions to collect any pond water; and (3) the outlet has sufficient depth and capacity to provide the degree of drainage desired, says Byron H. Nolte, Extension Agricultural Engineer, The Ohio State University.

Nolte points out that many tile drainage systems in Ohio were installed more than 50 years ago. In some cases, these systems may need major repair, upgrading or replacement, he says. Where fields already have some drainage improvements, the owner or manager needs to determine if further improvements are justified. Factors to consider are soil, crops to be grown, surface drainage conditions, sub-surface drainage, and adequacy of drainage outlets, Nolte explains.

The degree of drainage is illustrated by research results for the Toledo soil series, he says. Following a rain, research showed that the water table dropped about 0.5 feet per day with good surface drainage (graded to a 0.2 percent slope) and a 56-foot tile spacing. However, where no surface drainage was provided and all water had to be removed by subsurface tile, a tile spacing of 32 feet was required to lower the water table 0.5 feet per day (24 hours). In general, tile spacing can be 50 percent greater, when good surface drainage is provided, than when all water must be removed by the tile drains. For example, if tile spacings of 50 feet are recommended with poor surface drainage, you can expect about the same degree of drainage with 75-foot tile spacings and good surface drainage. If you have 100-foot tile spacings and good surface drainage, you have about the same degree of drainage as a 67-foot tile spacing and poor surface drainage.

Nolte says a field has good surface drainage when each field row slopes throughout its length toward a field surface drain (ditch) and the drain carries the surface water to an outlet ditch.

A field with depressions that collect water has poor surface drainage. The economic importance of a few surface depressions in a field depends on how much the depressions may affect yield and whether these water collecting depressions delay tillage, planting, and harvesting operations for the entire field.

Normally, fields with less than 0.2 percent slope (0.2-foot fall per 100 feet of row length) require the use of a land plane every one to four years to maintain good surface drainage.

Recommended drainage improvements are listed for all Ohio soils in the Ohio Drainage Guide. About 300 soil series found in Ohio are placed into 22 classifications for which drain depth and spacing recommendations are provided, Nolte says.

The longest animal ever recorded is the giant jellyfish (Cyanea arctica), which is found in the northwest Atlantic Ocean. One specimen washed up on the coast of Massachusetts, c. 1865, had a bell 7½ feet in diameter and tentacles measuring 120 feet.

Farm Program Sign-Up Is Important

Galen D. Mowery, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is reminding farmers that the sign-up and certification for the 1974 Feed Grain and Wheat Program is important.

Program sign-up for the 1974 Feed Grain and Wheat Program is now underway in all county ASCS Offices in Ohio. Mowery says that in the Pickaway County area we urge that as soon as the farm operator completes his spring planting of crops that he come to the ASCS Office and certify sufficient crops for harvest that will protect his feed grain and wheat allotment history for future farm allotments.

In addition to keeping present allotments farmers will protect their income against disaster losses such as wind, rain, hail or drought.

Farmers enrolled will also be eligible for grain and bin loans and be assured of the target prices for corn and wheat for the grain they produce. Mowery stated that farmers should refer their questions to the Pickaway County ASCS Office.

Soybean Demand Reduces Stocks

Soybean stocks in the U.S. totaled 742 million bushels on April 1, according to a recent report from Washington, Walton W. Spangler, executive director of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) reported.

"Although this is a record high, it is 62 million bushels less than the figure based on reported supply, less reported use." An increase in soybeans in transit this April as compared with last September must be taken into consideration, since these are not included in the count of stocks. Some soybean disappearance is unreported and about 45 percent of the April stocks still remain on farms.

Soybean processing in the United States and export estimates for 1973-1974 have been increased. The increases are related to additional requirements rather than any change in supply because of the April stock figure and the approximate carryover is reduced accordingly.

The demand for soybean oil has proven stronger than anticipated. Domestic use estimates have increased by 100 million pounds; exports by 200 million pounds. Domestic consumption estimates for soybean meal have also been increased at the lower market prices now existing.

than children whose mother stayed at home. Children of working mothers did not v e in school, and did not feel deprived of mother's affection. The research showed that the poorest mothers are those who would like to work, but who stay home out of a sense of duty. The major conclusion is: "What matters is the quality of a mother's relationship with her children, not the time of day it happens to be administered."

Also, the quality of the care of the children receive while the parents work matters. Young children especially need security, and research shows it is not good for a young child to have a constant turnover of baby sitters.

Pewter seems to be enjoying a popular revival. It's available in traditional tankards, bowls, coffee and tea sets, and a variety of accessories. But if you think you're getting silver for the rather high prices, sorry. The lovely stuff made these days is 90 per cent tin, plus copper and antimony. It stays hot or cold, depending on the drink you put in it. Don't ever put it over direct heat. Glass or plastic liners should be used to protect pewter bowls and trays from citrus fruits and vinegar-based salads and relishes. These food acids damage the finish. Fresh flowers will cause stains.

Careful cleaning pewter, it is soft and dents easily. Wash by hand always in lukewarm sudsy water. Rinse immediately and dry with a soft cloth. Spots can be removed with a solution of two tablespoons of ammonia to a quart of water. A silver polish can be used on tarnished pieces, but use sparingly.

Planning to can or freeze this summer? Why not pick up a package of canning lids or freezer bags each week. Then you'll have them ready to use when you need them and it won't hurt the budget so much. Most grocers, variety stores and hardwares carry them.

What is blanching time: Vegetables are blanched (or put into boiling water) for a specified time to remove earthy flavors and to stop enzyme action. Please do this step. Some homemakers omit this step, but they end up with inferior products. There is a false idea going around about blanching time. Counting time begins the instant the vegetable is put into boiling water, not when the water begins boiling again. Always check your recipe directions regarding other details and time. Water temperature is different for spinach and other greens. For greens, the water temperature should be 170 degrees rather than 212 degrees at the time you immerse the greens in it.

On April 24 the Environmental Protection Agency suspended the sale and distribution of all pesticide aerosols containing vinyl chloride. The order applied to pesticides used in enclosed areas such as food processing plants, homes, hospitals, and restaurants. Manufacturers are recalling outdoor pesticides voluntarily.

Why is vinyl chloride banned? It has been linked with a rare form of liver cancer among industrial workers who were exposed to the chemical. It was used in products ranging from ant and wasp killer to tick killer. Also, it was used experimentally in plastic liquor bottles, but it was demonstrated that the chemical "migrated" into liquor stored in the bottles for up to 1 year. F.D.A. is now researching the possibility of similar migration to nonalcoholic food as well. The new F.D.A. proposal is to ban vinyl chloride in drug and cosmetic aerosol products. If you have comments on this new proposal, send them to Hearing Clerk, F.D.A., 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20852.

ASCS Will Administer 2 Programs

Walton W. Spangler, executive director of Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), has announced that his office will administer two conservation programs at the same time this year; namely, the Rural Environmental Conservation Program (RECP) and the reinstated Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP).

Although the two programs are similar in name and share some of the same general practices, they differ in many respects, Spangler said.

Under each of the two programs, the federal government will be sharing with farmers and ranchers the cost of carrying out approved conservation measures on their land.

RECP will place emphasis on erosion control and will be used on long-term agreements of from 3 to 10 years and on annual practices. Erosion control measures include Establishing and Improving Stands of Vegetative Cover, Planting and Improving a Stand of Forest Trees, Sod Waterways, Diversions, Structures, and Water Impoundment Reservoirs.

REAP, which is funded at $225.5 million, was reinstated on March 12, 1974. REAP will place emphasis on measures which will prevent or abate pollution from animal waste, as well as provide soil, water, and woodland conservation. Measures included are livestock waste lagoons, storage ponds and tanks, diversions, terraces, sod waterways, open ditches & tiling practices.

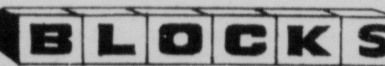

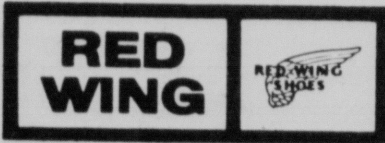

Applications for cost-share assistance are being accepted now. Persons interested in any of these conservation measures should contact the Pickaway County ASCS Office.

ASCS Programs are offered to all farmers and ranchers without regard to race, creek, color, sex or national origin.

Brown Beetles Mean Lawn Grubs

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent
Agriculture

Those brown beetles flying around door screens and lights these days mean a close look at your lawn is in order. These June beetles emerge from the soil during May and June and are the adults of white grubs feeding on the roots of your lawn grass.

According to Richard L. Miller, Extension Entomologist at The Ohio State University, there are more than 30 species of June beetles found in Ohio. Adults of the different species vary in color from light brown to nearly black. The beetles feed at night on leaves of oak, hickory, walnut, birch, elm, willow and many other plants. During the day they hide in the soil, usually a grassed area, where the females lay eggs, Miller says. Eggs hatch into tiny grubs in 3 to 4 weeks.

Young grubs feed on decaying and living vegetation in the soil throughout the summer. As cold weather approaches, they burrow deeper into the soil and remain there until spring. Then they return near the surface to feed on grass roots.

Grubs feed vigorously and grow rapidly throughout the second summer, causing most of their damage to turf during that time. To complete their cycle, about mid-October they burrow into the soil to spend the second winter. In the following spring, they move to the surface again and feed for about a month or more on grass roots. In mid-June, they move back into the soil and change to the pupal stage. After a month in this stage, they change to the adult but remain in their pupal chamber throughout the fall and winter and emerge as adults the following May and June. Then the females start laying eggs, starting the cycle over again.

To determine if you have white grubs, cut a square foot of sod on three sides and roll the sod back. Inspect the soil in the root area. Do this in several places in your yard. If two or more grubs are found per square foot, treatment is needed.

Treat with chlordane, heptachlor, aldrin, dieldrin, Spectracide, diazinon or dursban. Chlordane is commonly used because one treatment applied properly will protect your lawn against white grubs for as long as 5 years.

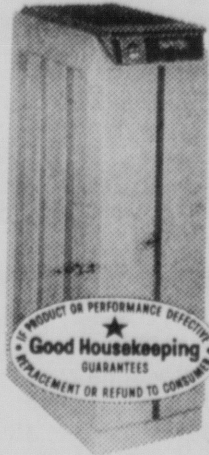

Leaflet 187 - Control of Turfgrass Pests - gives formulations of these insecticides, amount to use per acre or per 1,000 square feet and the best time to apply insecticide. Get a copy from your County Extension Office, 137 W. Franklin Street, Circleville, phone 474-7534.

Farm Program
Sign-Up Is Important

Galen D. Mowery, chairman of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is reminding farmers that the sign-up and certification for the 1974 Feed Grain and Wheat Program is important.

Program sign-up for the 1974 Feed Grain and Wheat Program is now underway in all county ASCS Offices in Ohio. Mowery says that as soon as the farm operator completes his spring planting of crops that he come to the ASCS Office and certify sufficient crops for harvest that will protect his feed grain and wheat allotment history for future farm allotments.

In addition to keeping present allotments farmers will protect their income against disaster losses such as wind, rain, hail or drought.

Farmers enrolled will also be eligible for grain and bin loans and be assured of the target prices for corn and wheat for the grain they produce.

Mowery stated that farmers should refer their questions to the Pickaway County ASCS Office.

Soybean
Demand
Reduces Stocks

Soybean stocks in the U.S. totaled 742 million bushels on April 1, according to a recent report from Washington, Walton W. Spangler, executive director of the Pickaway County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) reported.

"Although this is a record high, it is 62 million bushels less than the figure based on reported supply, less reported use." An increase in soybeans in transit this April as compared with last September must be taken into consideration, since these are not included in the count of stocks. Some soybean disappearance is unreported and about 45 percent of the April stocks still remain on farms.

Soybean processing in the United States and export estimates for 1973-1974 have been increased. The increases are related to additional requirements rather than any change in supply because of the April stock figure and the approximate carryover is reduced accordingly.

The demand for soybean oil has proven stronger than anticipated. Domestic use estimates have increased by 100 million pounds; exports by 200 million pounds. Domestic consumption estimates for soybean meal have also been increased at the lower market prices now existing.

A Page Of Opinion

Focus On Housing

For most individuals the major purchase of a lifetime is the home in which they live.

Not only does it represent a major investment, but it also usually is financed over a long period. That is the obstacle which has relegated the housing industry to the doldrums in the last several years.

Record high interest rates and rising construction costs have combined to push housing starts down to only about 320,000 homes this year, compared to 488,000 last year, which was not a good year for housing.

Possibly the recently-announced $10.3 billion made available by the federal government to help subsidize buyers interested in both conventional and government-guaranteed mortgages will help rejuvenate housing.

Cutting inflation's influence, and consequently high interest rates, would be a better long-term cure.

Joins A-Bomb Nations

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — About a year ago while attending the opening of the Oberoi-Sheraton Hotel in Bombay, a local newsmen took all of us to bitter task for enjoying its creature comforts. He wrote with understandable bitterness that the invited guests from the U.S., sometimes referred to as freeloaders, would have access to bathroom faucets 24 hours a day and could splash in the hotel's swimming pool.

"While scarcely half a mile away, starving people scratch the barren earth for a cup of dirty water," he added. Made everybody feel like a Cossack.

A bit later, at the depressing colonial red fort in old Delhi, a bus carrying the sightseeing visitors stopped at a platform filled with beggars of all ages. My wife was particularly touched by the sight of a boy of perhaps seven or eight whose little sister, perhaps one year old or a bit more, was lying across his lap asleep. As the bus shuddered to a stop in the withering heat and the beggars swarmed towards it, the boy shook the baby awake and both instinctively held out their hands. My wife got off the bus and gave the boy the rupee equivalent of five bucks.

The kid took off like a sprinter, the baby slung over his shoulder. He was instantly pursued by other poor souls who tried to grab the money from him, including a man in the prime poverty of his life. My wife took off, too, and helped the boy and the child escape. Later, as the tourists were leaving, the boy with the ragged little doll appeared again, running beside the bus, blowing kisses.

Then, still later, U.S. Ambassador Pat Moynihan, though pointedly snubbed by churlish Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, worked to have America forget the millions of dollars India owes for grain earlier delivered to a land where 80 per cent of the nearly 600,000,000 people go to bed hungry every night.

But hold! Salvation is now at hand! India has tested an atomic device, last step on the road to the colossally expensive deliverable A-bomb and, beyond that, the H-bomb. One wonders whether the freeflowing hotel bathroom tap now riles the Bombay columnist; whether the hungry hundreds of millions really share the exultation of Indian newspaper headline writers who emblazoned front pages with "Nation Is Thrilled," "A Great Landmark," and "Indian Genius triumphs."

Mahatma Gandhi must be whirling in his flower-covered grave.

If the House Judiciary Committee finds itself without enough evidence to recommend to the full House that President Nixon be impeached, let it consider an off-beat charge lodged by Felicity Hofferger, assistant editor of the Stamford (Conn.) Weekly Mail.

Ms. Hofferger, in an indignant letter to the Times, writes:

"The Nixon transcripts are out, and everywhere people are appalled, and rightly so, by their cold-blooded amorality. As yet, however, no one has remarked on another aspect of them: their appalling misuse of grammar.

... it is a shock to realize that a man who not only is a graduate of college and of law school but who has also managed to become President of the United States does not know the difference between such verbs as 'lie' and 'lay.' ('The men were lying in the bushes,' he says.) Nor, judging from the tapes, does he know when to use 'who' or 'whom,' 'like' or 'as,' or the tenses of verbs."

Ms. Hofferger strikes a familiar charge (somewhere buried in Shakespeare): Men seeking a reason to kill an accused, and finding none, decide it would be a good idea to condemn him for his bad poetry.

WANTED: AN ASSORTMENT OF "ANGELS" (by the LBJ Memorial Grove on the Potomac, a tax-deductible non-profit organization which proposes to create a different kind of memorial for the late President):

"A 'tree angel' who will give us 500 white pine trees or the $360,000 it will take to move and plant those trees. Just right for the paper companies, the lumber companies or such an association, as a way to say 'we're interested in planting as well as cutting.'"

"An 'electric angel' ... someone who will provide $75,000 worth of indirect lighting for this scenic spot—not a statue or a building but a living grove of trees, trails and park."

"And lots of other 'angels' who will give as much as $1,000 for a trail or as little as $5 and $10 for bushes, etc."

The angelic word comes from Liz Carpenter, former secretary to former First Lady, Lady Bird. Liz adds, "We have raised $600,000 with the goal $2,000,000. The hardest thing we do is to let people know where we are: The LBJ Grove, Box 5557 Washington, D. C. 20016."

Now a few of them know ...

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Iron and Steel Institute, made up of the top executives of the nation's steel industry, met here this week. The mood was mixed, often plaintive, sometimes confusing.

When the industry's power and accomplishments weren't lauded, it seemed that its weaknesses and vulnerability were the chief concerns. The future would be good, it seemed, if taxes, imports and environmentalists could be recalled.

The next decade, predicted Stewart S. Cort, chairman of Bethlehem Steel and the institute, will be one in which demand for the product might be unprecedented domestically.

Cort called current depreciation regulations on plant and equipment "a sick joke." Tax provisions aren't doing the job of helping the industry raise capital, he said. And without capital the industry clearly cannot expand.

What then? "If we cannot find a way to provide capacity to meet foreseeable domestic demand, if we don't act on it, mark my words, there'll be irresistible pressure for the government to step in and take over," he said.

Not very long ago such cries would be ignored or considered part of steel's paranoia, or at best, steel's way of obtaining its demands. But not now.

In recent months there seems to be a growing suspicion that pressure groups and government, by ignoring the dollar and cents realities of business, can regulate it into a corner from where there is no escape except into the arms of government.

The financial predicament of Consolidated Edison, which had to seek state assistance, is cited as an example. U.S. overseas air carriers insist they cannot function profitably without regulatory changes. The Penn Central railroad is bankrupt.

The steel industry now maintains that without a more considerate role by government and environmentalists it will be unable to operate profitably enough to attract capital to meet its obligations, including environmental ones.

Edgar Speer, U.S. Steel chairman, stated his opinion with the blunt, threatening quality that has often cost the industry popular support: "Unless present environmental laws are revised, the steel industry may be headed for 'an environmental calamity' which would have grave repercussions for the nation's economy."

Te suggested that this national standard "may well be unnecessary ... and is certainly going to cost the American public dearly if the situation isn't changed."

Despite big returns in 1973, many steel companies still haven't achieved the level of profitability they had in 1957-1959.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Many parents of our young youth today are confused as to what the U.S. Army represents or what their commitments are to the young men and women who are about to graduate from high school. If you would take just a few minutes to visit the Army Recruiting Station at 116 E. Main Street, Circleville, Ohio, you will see the many educational opportunities available to our youth which in many cases their parents cannot afford to offer in any other way.

Our Army today is an institution, the same as any other educational institution that can teach our youth to prepare themselves for any eventuality. The best part is that this education is furnished free — with pay!

Today's Army is mechanized; there is no foot Army that marches into battle. Today, it's tanks, the missiles controlled electronically by young men and women like you — not the old Army you see in the movies.

To you young men and women, it's up to you. This opportunity comes once in your lifetime. Why not take the time to investigate what types of education are offered to you by the U.S. Army? Any questions you may have will be answered by a staff of officers.

Drop in any time between the hours of 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily to see what the U.S. Army has to offer you and your future.

In 1862, Confederate troops under Gen. Stonewall Jackson defeated a Union force in the Civil War battle of Winchester, Va.

In 1944, in World War II, the Anzio beachhead in Italy was linked with the Allied front.

In 1961, President John Kennedy asked the nation to strive to send Americans to the moon "before this decade is out."

Ten years ago ... Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev returned to Moscow after a 16-day visit to the United Arab Republic, during which he promised millions of dollars in aid to the Egyptians.

Five years ago ... the Norwegian adventurer, Thor Heyerdahl, set sail from Morocco in a papyrus reed boat to test the theory that the ancient Egyptians had sailed a similar craft to Central America 3,000 years ago.

One year ago ... Hector Campora was inaugurated as President of Argentina, heading an elected government after seven years of military rule.

Today's birthdays: President Tito of Yugoslavia is 82. Writer Herman Wouk is 59. Former boxing champion Gene Tunney is 76.

Circleville police were instructed to be courteous with motorists in checking traffic infractions but to use tags on habitual offenders by Karl Herrmann, safety director.

Councilmen had a good laugh at the expense of Carl C. Leist, solicitor, and Fred R. Nicholas, clerk. After the clerk had some difficulty reading an ordinance written in longhand by the city solicitor, Councilman Frank Lynch moved that an investigation be conducted to determine why two men, both working in the same office, should have such trouble.

Legislation involving the operation and completion of the disposal plant was the principal business before city council.

Bright and attractive after a period of rejuvenation, the Pickaway Country Club held its first major social affair of the season. Twilight golf was enjoyed Blind Bogey won by A. L. Wilder.

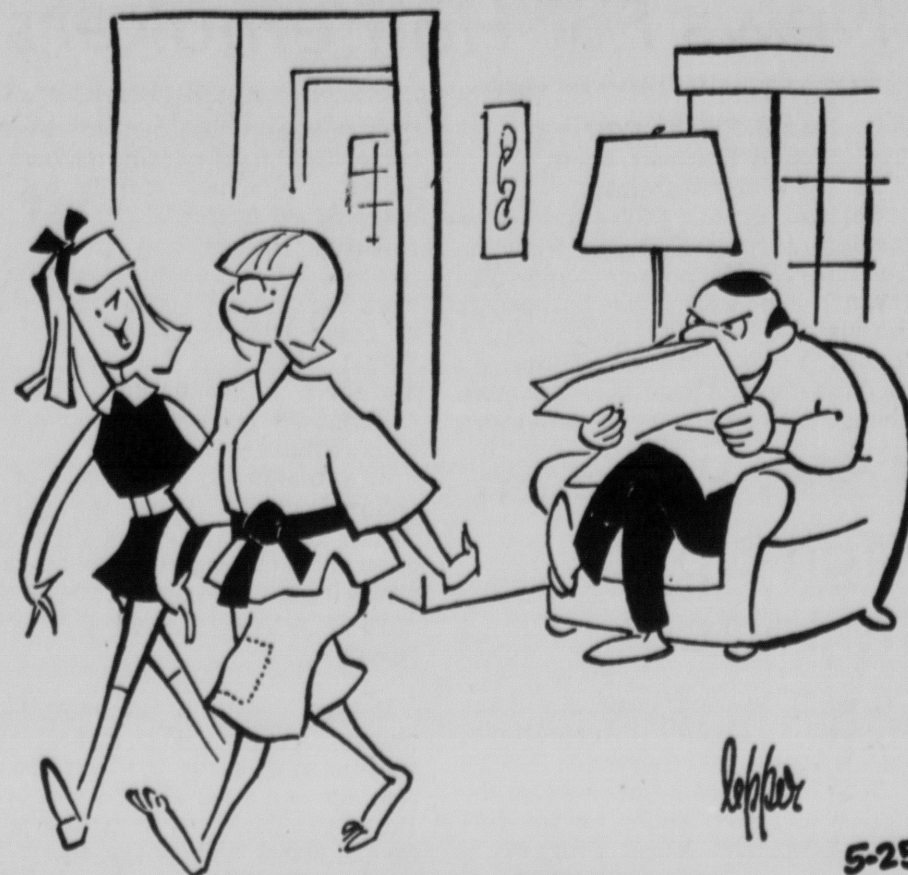

Joe Davis was just about the fastest piece of human mechanism developed in Pickaway County. A member of the New Holland High School track team, he won the 100 yard dash and the 220-yard low hurdles in the district class B meet at Delaware.

Ray Davis, Montclair Ave., was elected president of the Past Exalted Rulers' Assn. of the Circleville Elks Lodge. Other officers include Charles H. May, first vice president; Harry L. Bartholomew, second vice president; Paul H. Betz, secretary-treasurer.

Rejection of grafted tissue has stymied the progress of transplantation of tissue. Dr. William T. Summerlin, working at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Center in New York City, has demonstrated that corneas of the eye used in transplants can now be treated in a special way to reduce the chance of rejection.

The technique he is using is similar to the one he successfully employed to preserve human skin needed for skin grafts.

Dr. Summerlin's approach to the problem of rejection is new and novel and holds great promise for future investigation.

A new drug, bleomycin, has shown in clinical trials to be highly effective against some cancers of the skin.

The Food and Drug Administration has given approval to this anti-cancer drug which was developed in Japan.

The early studies have been so good that bleomycin is soon to be tried in the treatment of other conditions, like Hodgkins' disease.

Groups of doctors in many hospitals all over the country are trying the drug, with interest and caution.

Only those who are highly trained in its use are undertaking the treatment of patients at this time.

Dr. James K. Luce, of the Anderson Hospital in Houston, Texas, is one of the many physicians who are evaluating the potential of Bleomycin. Dr. Charles A. Colman, of the United States Air Force Medical Center, is another of those who are employing this drug for investigation.

A new approach to the understanding of gout has recently been released. Dr. J. E. Seegmiller, and his co-workers at the University of California School of Medicine in La Jolla, believe that an inherited enzyme may be responsible for a gouty tendency.

It is hoped that this research may open up new horizons in understanding why some people are more prone at an early age to develop gouty symptoms.

Temporary hoarseness can best be treated by absolute vocal rest (with no whispering) and the inhalation of steam.

Grocery Sidesteps Penny Shortage

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A local grocery store chain is battling the penny shortage by printing its own.

The Eagle Grocery Stores are using paper pennies, printed at company expense and redeemable at all Eagle stores, to overcome a chronic shortage of the copper coins.

"This was about the last thing that we wanted to do," store manager Dick Gardiner said Thursday. "But we really had little choice. We didn't want to cheat our customers, but we still had to make change."

Customers receive green slips of paper, printed with the company name, instead of pennies for change.

Five of the paper slips, which are slightly larger than a business card, are worth a nickel.

"What else could we do," asks Gardiner. "We couldn't get pennies. And if we went through the store and rounded off all our prices the sales tax would still defeat us. We just can't do without pennies."

The theory behind the penny shortage is that hoarders are storing them away in the belief that the copper they're made of will become more valuable than the worth of the penny itself. The U.S. Mint says it is coining all the pennies it can, but the shortage persists.

Some banks and department stores have begun to give customers $1.10 for every 100 pennies they turn in.

Gardiner said customers are cooperating in his printed penny venture and view the situation as "just one more shortage to put up with."

Some Houston businesses are rounding off prices to meet the shortage. As a result, the customer sometimes gets shortchanged.

The federal reserve bank in Houston says it is dumping as many pennies as ever into the market, but they just seem to disappear.

During a typical month last year, a reserve spokesman said, the federal offices here would receive $11,000 worth of pennies returned from the local banks for redistribution. Now, he says, only about $2,000 worth is returned from the banks each month. "And commercial banks are having the same problem. Says one banker: 'Once we'd get $500 to $1,500 pennies back (from circulation) each week. Now we're not getting any back.'"

Johnson Security Cost $5.9 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — While one House committee says federal expenditures reached $5.9 million on former President Lyndon B. Johnson's property, another has promised close scrutiny for all new presidential expenditures.

The House Government Operations Committee said Thursday that most of the funds for the Johnson properties were spent on security facilities. The committee had disclosed earlier that $17.1 million was spent on homes used by President Nixon, also mainly in the name of security.

The committee said the Department of Defense and the White House Communications Agency spent an estimated $3,573,000 for communications support in connection with the LBJ Ranch in Texas.

The $5.9 million also includes $770,000 for Johnson's Austin, Tex., office; $15,000 for installation and repair of Secret Service facilities at Johnson's Haywood Ranch where he occasionally went boating; and $34,000 for work at a hanger on the LBJ ranch "to accommodate news conferences, television broadcasts and the entertainment of foreign dignitaries."

Also included were $29,400 for security lighting, guardhouses and trailers, $3,400 for stone walls and fences and $4,300 for strobe and beacon lights to facilitate helicopter landings.

Members of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee put Roy L. Ash, chief of the Office of Management and Budget, and the White House on notice that a bill providing for new presidential expenses faces rough going on the House floor. Ash was testifying for the bill.

The bill would authorize about $19 million for White House staff salaries, expenses, travel, presidential entertainment and upkeep of the White House; $1 million for a presidential contingency fund, and $920,000 for the staff of the vice president.

The bill does not cover Secret Service security, military budget items for White House aircraft, Park Service upkeep of the White House grounds and other costs covered elsewhere in the budget.

The office of the Attorney General was organized by an Act of Congress, Sept. 24, 1789. Washington appointed Edmund Randolph to the post.

A Page Of Opinion

Focus On Housing

For most individuals the major purchase of a lifetime is the home in which they live. Not only does it represent a major investment, but it also usually is financed over a long period. That is the obstacle which has relegated the housing industry to the doldrums in the last several years. Record high interest rates and rising construction costs have combined to push housing starts down to only about 320,000 homes this year, compared to 488,000 last year, which was not a good year for housing. Possibly the recently-announced $10.3 billion made available by the federal government to help subsidize buyers interested in both conventional and government-guaranteed mortgages will help rejuvenate housing. Cutting inflation's influence, and consequently high interest rates, would be a better long-term cure.

Joins A-Bomb Nations

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — About a year ago while attending the opening of the Oberoi-Sheraton Hotel in Bombay, a local newsman took all of us to bitter task for enjoying its creature comforts. He wrote with understandable bitterness that the invited guests from the U.S., sometimes referred to as freeholders, would have access to bathroom faucets 24 hours a day and could splash in the hotel's swimming pool.

"While scarcely half a mile away, starving people scratch the barren earth for a cup of dirty water," he added. Made everybody feel like a Cossack.

A bit later, at the depressing colonial red fort in old Delhi, a bus carrying the sightseeing visitors stopped at a platform filled with beggars of all ages. My wife was particularly touched by the sight of a boy of perhaps seven or eight whose little sister, perhaps one year old or a bit more, was lying across his lap asleep. As the bus shuddered to a stop in the withering heat and the beggars swarmed towards it, the boy shook the baby awake and both instinctively held out their hands. My wife got off the bus and gave the boy the rupee equivalent of five bucks.

The kid took off like a sprinter, the baby slung over his shoulder. He was instantly pursued by other poor souls who tried to grab the money from him, including a man in the prime poverty of his life. My wife took off, too, and helped the boy and the child escape. Later, as the tourists were leaving, the boy with the ragged little doll appeared again, running beside the bus, blowing kisses.

Then, still later, U.S. Ambassador Pat Moynihan, though pointedly snubbed by churlish Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, worked to have America forget the millions of dollars India owes for grain earlier delivered to a land where 80 per cent of the nearly 600,000,000 people go to bed hungry every night.

But hold! Salvation is now at hand! India has tested an atomic device, last step on the road to the colossally expensive deliverable A-bomb and, beyond that, the H-bomb. One wonders whether the freeflowing hotel bathroom tap now rules the Bombay columnist; whether the hungry hundreds of millions really share the exultation of Indian newspaper headline writers who emblazoned front pages with "Nation Is Thrilled," "A Great Landmark," and "Indian Genius triumphs."

Mahatma Gandhi must be whirling in his flower-covered grave.

If the House Judiciary Committee finds itself without enough evidence to recommend to the full House that President Nixon be impeached, let it consider an off-beat charge lodged by Felicity Hoffercker, assistant editor of the Stamford (Conn.) Weekly Mail.

Ms. Hoffercker, in an indignant letter to the Times, writes:

"The Nixon transcripts are out, and

everywhere people are appalled, and rightly so, by their cold-blooded amorality. As yet, however, no one has remarked on another aspect of them: their appalling misuse of grammar. "... it is a shock to realize that a man who not only is a graduate of college and of law school but who has also managed to become President of the United States does not know the difference between such verbs as 'lie' and 'lay.' ("The men were laying in the bushes," he says). Nor, judging from the tapes, does he know when to use 'who' or 'whom,' 'like' or 'as,' or the tenses of verbs."

Ms. Hoffercker strikes a familiar charge (somewhere buried in Shakespeare): Men seeking a reason to kill an accused, and finding none, decide it would be a good idea to condemn him for his bad poetry.

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Iron and Steel Institute, made up of the top executives of the nation's steel industry, met here this week. The mood was mixed, often plaintive, sometimes confusing.

When the industry's power and accomplishments weren't lauded, it seemed that its weaknesses and vulnerability were the chief concerns. The future would be good, it seemed, if taxes, imports and environmentalists could be recalled.

The next decade, predicted Stewart S. Cort, chairman of Bethlehem Steel and the institute, will be one in which demand for the product might be unprecedented domestically.

Cort called current depreciation regulations on plant and equipment "a sick joke." Tax provisions aren't doing the job of helping the industry raise capital, he said. And without capital the industry clearly cannot expand. What then? "If we cannot find a way to provide capacity to meet foreseeable domestic demand, if we don't act on it, mark my words, there'll be irresistible pressure for the government to step in and take over," he said.

Not very long ago such cries would be ignored or considered part of steel's paranoia, or at best, steel's way of obtaining its demands. But not now.

In recent months there seems to be a growing suspicion that pressure groups and government, by ignoring the dollar and cents realities of business, can regulate it into a corner from where there is no escape except into the arms of government.

The financial predicament of Consolidated Edison, which had to seek state assistance, is cited as an example. U.S. overseas air carriers insist they cannot function profitably without regulatory changes. The Penn Central railroad is bankrupt.

The steel industry now maintains that without a more considerate role by government and environmentalists it will be unable to operate profitably enough to attract capital to meet its obligations, including environmental mnes.

Edgar Speer, U.S. Steel chairman, stated his opinion with the blunt, threatening quality that has often cost the industry popular support: "Unless present environmental laws are revised, the steel industry may be headed for 'an environmental calamity' which would have grave repercussions for the nation's economy."

Te suggested that this national standard "may well be unnecessary ... and is certainly going to cost the American public dearly if the situation isn't changed."

Despite big returns in 1973, many steel companies still haven't achieved the level of profitability they had in 1957-1959.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Many parents of our young youth today are confused as to what the U.S. Army represents or what their commitments are to the young men and women who are about to graduate from high school. If you would take just a few minutes to visit the Army Recruiting Station at 116 E. Main Street, Circleville, Ohio, you will see the many educational opportunities available to our youth which in many cases their parents cannot afford to offer in any other way.

Our Army today is an institution, the same as any other educational institution that can teach our youth to prepare themselves for any eventuality. The best part is that this education is furnished free — with pay!

Today's Army is mechanized; there is no foot Army that marches into battle. Today, it's tanks, the missiles controlled electronically by young men and women like you — not the old Army you see in the movies.

To you young men and women, it's up to you. This opportunity comes once in your lifetime. Why not take the time to investigate what types of education are offered to you by the U.S. Army? Any questions you may have will be answered by a staff of officers.

Drop in any time between the hours of 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily to see what the U.S. Army has to offer you and your future.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

There For Him, Not For Her

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would have to write to Dear Abby for advice, but here I am with the rest of the schnooks.

I am a 56-year-old Southern gentleman who lost his wife a year ago. (No children.) I put my house on the market and fell in love with the real estate agent. She's a sophisticated, 42-year-old divorcee who can turn me on with a look. I knew she was for me an hour after I met her.

I took her to New York and we stayed at the best hotel (separate rooms). We saw five Broadway shows in as many nights and had a wonderful time. I took her to a jewelry store, hoping she'd pick out some rings, but she ended up with a diamond wristwatch instead. All the time I wine and dined her I never laid a hand on her because I wanted her to know I was a real Southern gentleman whose intentions were strictly honorable.

When we got home, she told me she wouldn't marry me because the "chemistry" wasn't right. (Now what the heck does that mean?) She returned the watch and asked me not to call her anymore. Abby, I love this woman. How can I win her over?

VIRGINIAN
DEAR VIRGINIAN: You can't. The lady is looking for skyrockets, Roman candles, gypsy violins and goose bumps. In other words, YOU don't turn HER on. Don't waste precious time brooding. You have a lot going for you, so get going.

DEAR ABBY: After being married to Dudley for 30 years I suppose I should accept the fact that he isn't the most demonstrative man in the world but there is something that bothers me.

A few months ago we got a dog, and since then nothing has been the same around here. Dudley calls the dog all the pet names he used to call me. He even pats the dog on the same spot he used to pat me.

Abby, I need a little affection too, but I'm being ignored. When I complained, Dudley said: "Don't tell me you're jealous of a dog?" Well, I am, and I am not kidding. Any suggestions?

May Rhymer, John Miranda, Jennie Eccard, Della Wertman and Hazel Harvey. Other members with May birthdays but not present were: Henrietta Stocklen, Ellen Camp, Maneva Ross, Justine Anderson, Leona Berger, George Kuhn, Dorothy List, Eleanor Rowland, Lottie Graham, Luella Stout, Bea Bach, Russell Yaple, Rose Horch, Mary Besanson, Chester Wertman, Austin Hurley, Thelma Jones, Carl Zehner, Ina Marshall, Ethel Axe, Luella Lape, Betty Goeller, Russ Palm, Etta May Allen, Emma Curlett, Ida Mitchell, Madeline Smith and Kenneth Henn.

Mrs. Lorentz reminded all of the homeowners that June 3rd is the deadline for filing for Homestead Tax reduction, if you are 65 by Jan. 1, 1975, live in your own home and have a joint income of under $10,000. Application must be made at our County Auditors office at the courthouse.

There will be no more ceramics classes on Mondays until in July, and bowling is now on Tuesday afternoons at 1:30 instead of Friday. All interested bowlers are invited to Circle-D Lanes each Tuesday.

After the business meeting was over, Ruth Miranda, program chairman for the day, introduced Bessie Good who gave a reading, "Mother's Apron." "My Mother's Bible" was the title of a song by Pauline Jones, Grace Streitenberger, Lucille Scott and Ruth Miranda accompanied by Ray Beery at the piano. Viola Hartranft gave a reading entitled, "Mother" and then she and her sister, Pauline Pearce, sang "Love Of Our Mothers," also accompanied by Mr. Beery. Blanche Kerns gave a humorous reading "Mother's Perfect Day" relating the events of a day which would be considered anything but perfect by a modern day mother. The program concluded with the entire group singing "Mother" and praying the Lord's Prayer.

The next group meeting will be June 13 at the Village United Methodist church in Ashville, with the Kitchen Band entertaining. Everyone is cordially invited to bring a sack lunch and spend the day.

To stretch chicken for a salad, add cooked rice along with the diced celery and mayonnaise. If you happen to have a small amount of cooked green peas in the refrigerator, they may also be added.

Hubert Green Leads Memphis Open Golf

MEMPHIS (AP)—It isn't likely that success will spoil Hubert Green, but it sure does confuse him. "I really don't know how to handle it," Green said after taking his second consecutive 66 for a 132 total and a two-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Open Golf Tournament. His score matched the best 36 holes for the year on the pro tour and gave him a solid advantage over little Rod Curl and red-haired Tom Watson, tied for second at 134. Curl had a 69, and Watson one of the four 66s posted in the hot, muggy weather. Green, a lanky 27-year-old from Birmingham, Ala., has won two titles and more than $103,000 already this season and—with the absent Johnny Miller and Buddy Allin—has been among the standouts of the season. "Winning takes a lot more out of you than just playing in a tournament does. You get real tired. "I've never been in this position before. It's like my first year on the tour. You don't know when to rest, when to take time off, how to handle yourself." Then, he added, with a grin: "I just hope I can learn this year and have the opportunity to put it to use next year." "I just didn't hit my irons very well and got in a lot of bunker trouble," said Curl, the bubbly little Indian who scored a surprise victory in last week's Colonial National in Fort Worth, Tex. Bob Wynn was alone at 136 after a 70 while Gary Player, the Masters champion from South Africa, slipped from an opening 65 to a par 72 and was tied at 137 with Bobby Mitchell and Forrest Fezler, each of whom had a 66. Dave Hill, a four-time Memphis winner and the defending champion, slipped to 73-140. Lee Trevino rallied with a late string of three consecutive twos—a birdie, eagle, birdie—for a 71 and just survived the cut for the last two rounds at 144.

Fisticuffs Mark K.C.-Chisox Game

By BERT ROSENTHAL

John Mayberry a fighter? Dick Allen a peacemaker? Unusual roles for both of them, but those were the parts they played Friday night. Mayberry, Kansas City's usually mild-mannered first baseman known more for his slugging exploits with a bat rather than his fists, surprisingly became incensed when he was struck just below the right knee by a pitch from Chicago White Sox pitcher Stan Bahnsen. The misguided toss came in the third inning, one inning after Mayberry had tagged Bahnsen for a solo homer. Mayberry then charged toward the mound, after dropping his bat, and tagged Bahnsen with his fists, landing with both hands, as players from both dugouts and bullpens streamed onto the field. Finally, the controversial Allen, who has been involved in many fights, including a celebrated slugfest with former Philadelphia teammate Frank Thomas, restrained the angry Mayberry. When order was restored after 10 minutes, Mayberry was ejected but Bahnsen was permitted to remain in the game. But Bahnsen was the loser too in Kansas City's 4-2 victory. In other American League games, the Boston Red Sox topped the Milwaukee Brewers 5-3, the Minnesota Twins routed the Texas Rangers 9-0, the Cleveland Indians downed the Detroit Tigers 3-1, the Baltimore Orioles beat the New York Yankees 6-3, and the California Angels edged the Oakland A's 4-3. Mayberry's homer, his ninth of the season, gave Kansas City a 1-0 lead and the Royals went ahead 3-0 just prior to the brawl on Amos Otis' two-run single. Mayberry was apologetic about charging at Bahnsen and triggering the free-for-all. "I shouldn't have done it," he said. "I'm sorry. I just forgot about the game. It's the first time I've ever done anything like that."

Captures Javelin Title

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — The wind and time were against Rick Dowswell, but he withstood the test, capturing the javelin title in the 49th Central Collegiate Conference outdoor track championship Friday. "I only had one day's rest because the javelin was moved up one day," said Ohio University's Dowswell, after tossing the stick 249-4. "I usually need two days' rest to do my best. Today, my throws were very technically, controlled, but no snap. The wind was a factor. There was a dead pocket where the javelin would get up and die." Dowswell, four-time Mid-American Conference champion, won the event easily, out-distancing teammate Rick McIntosh, who threw 231-0, on a sunny, windy day at Bowling Green State University. It was the first of two days in the CCC championships with six of the 20 finals being held. Today the competition list was headed by favorites Charles McMullen of Missouri in the mile, Dennis Adama of Indiana in the high jump and Jim Green of Ohio State in the pole vault. Marshall Dill of Michigan State defended his titles in the 100 and 220 dashes. Tom Meyer of Western Michigan won the hammer throw with 174-11.

Favorites Winning

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The defending champions, with two notable exceptions, were in strong position today to keep Ohio high school track, golf and tennis titles. The only stunners Friday on the opening day of competition at Ohio State came in track and tennis. Terry Burris of Columbus Whitehall, the reigning Class AAA high jump king, settled for third place. He went 6-6 to 6-8 by champion Mike Whitehead of Cincinnati Colerain. And Bob Gardner, Upper Arlington's 1973 Class AAA tennis singles title holder, didn't even make it past the first round. He fell to Kettering Alter sophomore Bob Kronauge 6-4, 7-5. Meanwhile, form held nearly everywhere else. Cleveland Glenville, with four individual qualifiers and two relay units, was on the verge of keeping its Class AAA track title. The Tarblowers were after their ninth crown in the last 16 years. Columbus Watterson, hunting its third straight Class AA golf championship, carried a 310-314 stroke lead over Bryan.

Reds Turn Back San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson admits he put his players under an unusual amount of pressure this week when they lost three straight to Los Angeles and fell nine games behind the Dodgers in the National League West. "I told them we have to play .650 ball the next two months," Anderson said Friday night after the Reds broke a fourgame losing streak by beating San Diego 6-3 with the help of Pedro Borbon's ninth-inning relief pitching. "The Dodgers are the best team in baseball today," Anderson said, "but I don't think they're going to win our division. They're good, awfully good, but I think something will happen to them." Anderson recalled that, in 1973, the Reds came on to win in the West after trailing the Dodgers by 11 games in July. "We won 60 of our last 81 games—that's a once-in-a-lifetime thing," he says, "but I know we're a lot better team than the record we have now (21-19)."

The Friday night victory over the Padres, combined with the Dodgers' second straight loss in San Francisco, lifted the Reds within eight games of Los Angeles with 122 games remaining on the Cincinnati schedule.

Borbon saved the victory for starter Don Gullett, 5-3, who was driven to cover when Clarence Gaston and John Grubb of the Padres opened the ninth inning with singles to imperil Cincinnati's 6-2 lead.

Dave Roberts greeted Borbon with a bunt single to load the bases, Matty Alou hit a runscore fly, then Fred Kendall hit a single off Borbon's shin to load the bases again and bring the winning run to the plate in the form of Derrel Thomas.

However, Borbon got Thomas to ground into a game-ending double play to hand the Padres their 14th defeat in their last 18 games.

It was the fourth loss in a row for San

Garr And Braves Blank Astros

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The way Ralph Garr is going this year, he'll hit close to 300. That's not a .300 batting average, but 300 hits. One of the hottest batters in baseball, Garr added three more hits to his whopping total while leading the Atlanta Braves to a 3-0 decision over the Houston Astros Friday night. "I'm not satisfied where I'm at," Garr said despite drilling two home runs and a single in boosting his hit total to 73 at the first quarter mark of the season. Garr's .378 batting average leads the National League, and if he continues at this frantic pace, he'll have about 290 hits for the year. "That's nothing new with me," said Garr, referring to his hitting streak. "Look back over my life hitting. When I get my hits, they are in bunches. I don't mean three or four hits in a row. I mean in a series of games. I've been hitting that way all my life. Nobody knows anything about it but me, but if I keep going, they'll know."

In the other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Chicago Cubs 1-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the New York Mets 4-1; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the San Diego Padres 6-3 and the San Francisco Giants turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-7.

Buzz Capra pitched a threehitter for Atlanta while getting Garr's splendid support.

Capra, 3-2, in a rare starting role, permitted only singles by Greg Gross in the first inning, Cesar Cedeño in the fourth and Tommy Helms in the eighth. He walked only one batter and struck out four.

It was the first shutout of Capra's career. He once pitched eight innings of shutout ball for the New York Mets in 1972, "but they took me out because I guess they thought I was tired."

"He struck me out two times in a row. Nate Colbert loaded the bases for the Padres with one out. One run scored when Clarence Gaston grounded into a forceout and another came across when second baseman Morgan's throw to first in an attempt for a double play went wild for an error.

Meantime, Pete Rose and Dave Concepcion each knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly for the Reds, Gullett and Dan Driessen each singled home a run and Darrell Chaney drove in another with a double. Greif let in another with a wild pitch.

The 15,987 who paid their way in raised San Diego home attendance to 366,652 for 24 dates, an increase of approximately 134,000 over the same period a year ago.

Teays Valley Splits With Hartley

Teays Valley split a doubleheader with Hartley Friday, losing the first game 10-0 but coming back in the second for a 3-0 victory.

Hartley scored four runs in the second inning, one in the fourth and five in the seventh. They banded 11 hits, including a home run with a runner on in the second, a triple and a double.

For the Vikings, Terry Souther, Brad Stuthard and Keith Pettibone all doubled, Norm McPherson and Rusty Rathburn singled.

Karpowicz was the winning pitcher, walking three and fanning six. Pettibone was the loser, walking three and fanning four.

In the second game Jeff Anderson blanked the Hartley hitters in picking up his ninth win in ten starts. He was touched for five hits, walked three and fanned seven. The losing pitcher was Weidner who was relieved after five innings by Voshing. They walked two, fanned four and gave up eight hits.

For Teays Valley, McPherson banded three singles, Chuck Glit, Terry Lambert and Terry Althaus two singles each and Anderson a double and a single.

Teays Valley ended the season with a 21-7 record overall and a 10-3 mark in the Metropolitan League. The Vikings have one more loss than Grandview but the league leaders still have two games to play, with Marysville and Franklin Heights, giving the Vikings a chance to share the league title.

It was the first of two days in the CCC championships with six of the 20 finals being held. Today the competition list was headed by favorites Charles McMullen of Missouri in the mile, Dennis Adama of Indiana in the high jump and Jim Green of Ohio State in the pole vault. Marshall Dill of Michigan State defended his titles in the 100 and 220 dashes. Tom Meyer of Western Michigan won the hammer throw with 174-11.

Favorites Winning

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The defending champions, with two notable exceptions, were in strong position today to keep Ohio high school track, golf and tennis titles. The only stunners Friday on the opening day of competition at Ohio State came in track and tennis. Terry Burris of Columbus Whitehall, the reigning Class AAA high jump king, settled for third place. He went 6-6 to 6-8 by champion Mike Whitehead of Cincinnati Colerain. And Bob Gardner, Upper Arlington's 1973 Class AAA tennis singles title holder, didn't even make it past the first round. He fell to Kettering Alter sophomore Bob Kronauge 6-4, 7-5. Meanwhile, form held nearly everywhere else. Cleveland Glenville, with four individual qualifiers and two relay units, was on the verge of keeping its Class AAA track title. The Tarbladders were after their ninth crown in the last 16 years. Columbus Watterson, hunting its third straight Class AA golf championship, carried a 310-314 stroke lead over Bryan.

Reds Turn Back San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson admits he put his players under an unusual amount of pressure this week when they lost three straight to Los Angeles and fell nine games behind the Dodgers in the National League West. "I told them we have to play .650 ball the next two months," Anderson said Friday night after the Reds broke a fourgame losing streak by beating San Diego 6-3 with the help of Pedro Borbon's ninth-inning relief pitching. "The Dodgers are the best team in baseball today," Anderson said, "but I don't think they're going to win our division. They're good, awfully good, but I think something will happen to them." Anderson recalled that, in 1973, the Reds came on to win in the West after trailing the Dodgers by 11 games in July. "We won 60 of our last 81 games—that's a once-in-a-lifetime thing," he says, "but I know we're a lot better team than the record we have now (21-19)." The Friday night victory over the Padres, combined with the Dodgers' second straight loss in San Francisco, lifted the Reds within eight games of Los Angeles with 122 games remaining on the Cincinnati schedule. Borbon saved the victory for starter Don Gullett, 5-3, who was driven to cover when Clarence Gaston and John Grubb of the Padres opened the ninth inning with singles to imperil Cincinnati's 6-2 lead. Dave Roberts greeted Borbon with a bunt single to load the bases, Matty Alou hit a runscoring fly, then Fred Kendall hit a single off Borbon's shin to load the bases again and bring the winning run to the plate in the form of Derrel Thomas. However, Borbon got Thomas to ground into a game-ending double play to hand the Padres their 14th defeat in their last 18 games. It was the fourth loss in a row for San Diego starter Bill Greif, 2-8, who allowed five runs on eight hits in seven innings plus. Nevertheless, he received compliments from Reds second baseman Joe Morgan. "He struck me out two times in a row. I think it's the best I've ever seen Bill pitch," Morgan said of the tall young righthander who failed to hold up a 2-0 lead with which he was presented in the first inning. A single by Thomas, a double by Willie McCovey and an intentional walk to Nate Colbert loaded the bases for the Padres with one out. One run scored when Clarence Gaston grounded into a forceout and another came across when second baseman Morgan's throw to first in an attempt for a double play went wild for an error. Meantime, Pete Rose and Dave Concepcion each knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly for the Reds, Gullett and Dan Driessen each singled home a run and Darrell Greaney drove in another with a double. Greif let in another with a wild pitch. The 15,987 who paid their way in raised San Diego home attendance to 366,652 for 24 dates, an increase of approximately 134,000 over the same period a year ago.

Garr And Braves Blank Astros

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
The way Ralph Garr is going this year, he'll hit close to 300. That's not a 300 batting average, but 300 hits. One of the hottest batters in baseball, Garr added three more hits to his whopping total while leading the Atlanta Braves to a 3-0 decision over the Houston Astros Friday night. "I'm not satisfied where I'm at," Garr said despite drilling two home runs and a single in boosting his hit total to 73 at the first quarter mark of the season. Garr's .378 batting average leads the National League, and if he continues at this frantic pace, he'll have about 290 hits for the year. "That's nothing new with me," said Garr, referring to his hitting streak. "Look back over my life hitting. When I get my hits, they are in bunches. I don't mean three or four hits in a row. I mean in a series of games. I've been hitting that way all my life. Nobody knows anything about it but me, but if I keep going, they'll know." In the other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Chicago Cubs 1-0; the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the New York Mets 4-1; the Montreal Expos trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2; the Cincinnati Reds defeated the San Diego Padres 6-3 and the San Francisco Giants turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 9-7. Buzz Capra pitched a threehitter for Atlanta while getting Garr's splendid support. Capra, 3-2, in a rare starting role, permitted only singles by Greg Gross in the first inning, Cesar Cedeño in the fourth and Tommy Helms in the eighth. He walked only one batter and struck out four. It was the first shutout of Capra's career. He once pitched eight innings of shutout ball for the New York Mets in 1972, "but they took me out because I guess they thought I was tired."

Len Wilkens Will Coach Portland

PORTLAND (AP)—Len Wilkens, the new coach of the Portland Trail Blazers, left Friday's news conference with his hands full. After finalizing the details of his agreement with the team and meeting the media for the first time in his new capacity, Wilkens departed with a signed three-year contract in one hand and a can of game films in the other. "I'll be studying these films to determine weaknesses and evaluate talent," he said. Even before he plugged in his projector, however, Wilkens admitted two areas that need work. "We definitely need improvement in team defense and we have to find an on-the-court leader," he said.

Could that leader be Bill Walton, the All-America UCLA center who recently signed with the Blazers for a reported $2.5 million? As cool off the court as he was on it during his 14-year National Basketball Association career, Wilkens quickly was ready with an answer. "People in basketball know that Kareem Abdul-Jabbar couldn't carry the Milwaukee Bucks to a championship in his first season," Wilkens said. "Bill Walton is not an Abdul-Jabbar, but he is a fine player."

Teays Valley Splits With Hartley

Teays Valley split a doubleheader with Hartley Friday, losing the first game 10-0 but coming back in the second for a 3-0 victory. Hartly scored four runs in the second inning, one in the fourth and five in the seventh. They banded 11 hits, including a home run with a runner on in the second, a triple and a double. For the Vikings, Terry Southers, Brad Stuthard and Keith Pettibone all doubled, Norm McPherson and Rusty Rathburn singled. Karpowicz was the winning pitcher, walking three and fanning six. Pettibone was the loser, walking three and fanning four. In the second game Jeff Anderson blanked the Hartley hitters in picking up his ninth win in ten starts. He was touched for five hits, walked three and fanned seven. The losing pitcher was Weidner who was relieved after five innings by Voshing. They walked two, fanned four and gave up eight hits. For Teays Valley, McPherson banded three singles, Chuck Gilt, Terry Lambert and Terry Althaus two singles each and Anderson a double and a single. Teays Valley ended the season with a 21-7 record overall and a 10-3 mark in the Metropolitan League. The Vikings have one more loss than Grandview but the league leaders still have two games to play, with Marysville and Franklin Heights, giving the Vikings a chance to share the league title.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): You are not usually a "quitter" nor do you leave others in a lurch, but a present tendency toward lethargy may incline you to fail these innate good traits. Don't!

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Keep everything ship-shape lest things get out of hand through inattention. Make your bid for gains through cogent use of your talents, integrity.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Some complex situations indicated, but don't be anxious. Your innate competence and proficiency in handling the unforeseen should see you through.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Don't confuse real problems with imaginary ones: Look over your schedule and weed out nonessentials. Personality conflicts should not deter good efforts.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): You could misinterpret certain situations. Carefully analyze the tasks and involvements of the next few days. Do not be misled by your emotions.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Look out for persons who downgrade your ambitions. Do not let them influence you. Keep plugging toward the achievement of goals you know are worthwhile.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You have better planetary influences than most, but you could still miss out on opportunity if careless or indifferent. Don't let this happen!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): A chance now to see things in quiet perspective. Stand back to review activities — but only those concerned with the present. Forget the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): If it will help to clear up a situation in sensible fashion, don't turn down any feasible suggestion. But discriminate between the astute and the rash.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Romance is in your picture now. You'll get unmistakable hints that someone you admire considers you most attractive. Follow up!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Fear of change may beset you at times, but success often calls for finding one's way through mazes, odd nooks, with incomprehensible persons. You may have to do this now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): What pleases one may not please another. You may have to juggle a bit to avoid undesirable contention and hassling. But, in your quiet way, you can manage it.

YOU BORN TODAY are clever, witty and engaging in manner. You attract friends easily — and keep them. You have been endowed with many talents but, of all these, your gift of words is paramount — which makes you a "natural" for writing in any form which pleases you.

You would make an outstanding reporter, editor, lecturer or TV commentator. In fact, all branches of the communications media make fine outlets for your talents and, through them, you can capitalize on your lively imagination, your originality and progressiveness. Science and the law also appeal to you, as does music, the theater and sculpture. You are a born traveler and could succeed in any occupation which keeps you "on the go."

Birthdate of: John Wayne, film star; James Arness, TV star ("Gunsmoke").

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) This Sunday night, ABC-TV is offering a two-hour tape replay of the day's Indianapolis 500, an event some consider a motorized loony display and others a legitimate sports contest.

But come Monday night, the Public Broadcasting Service will offer a far broader look at motor mania with "The Chrome-Plated Nightmare," a one-hour study of America's long love affair with the automobile.

Those who survive Memorial Day traffic might check out this show, though they're herewith warned it is uneven, gabby to a fault and never asks Detroit auto moguls to explain themselves or their wares.

As its title suggests, the program is pretty much of a raspberry directed primarily at the raised-fin, chrome-crazy, power-mad golden era of happy motoring—the mid-1950s to 1970.

It's a generally predictable inspection of the attitudes that led to that automotive mess, starting with the obligatory pilgrimage to Los Angeles, where the car is rumored to be king.

But there are some fine segments that offer considerable fuel for thought.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Look out for persons who downgrade your ambitions. Do not let them influence you. Keep plugging toward the achievement of goals you know are worthwhile.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You have better planetary influences than most, but you could still miss out on opportunity if careless or indifferent. Don't let this happen!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): A chance now to see things in quiet perspective. Stand back to review activities — but only those concerned with the present. Forget the past.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): If it will help to clear up a situation in sensible fashion, don't turn down any feasible suggestion. But discriminate between the astute and the rash.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Romance is in your picture now. You'll get unmistakable hints that someone you admire considers you most attractive. Follow up!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Fear of change may beset you at times, but success often calls for finding one's way through mazes, odd nooks, with incomprehensible persons. You may have to do this now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): What pleases one may not please another. You may have to juggle a bit to avoid undesirable contention and hassling. But, in your quiet way, you can manage it.

YOU BORN TODAY are clever, witty and engaging in manner. You attract friends easily — and keep them. You have been endowed with many talents but, of all these, your gift of words is paramount — which makes you a "natural" for writing in any form which pleases you. You would make an outstanding reporter, editor, lecturer or TV commentator. In fact, all branches of the communications media make fine outlets for your talents and, through them, you can capitalize on your lively imagination, your originality and progressiveness. Science and the law also appeal to you, as does music, the theater and sculpture. You are a born traveler and could succeed in any occupation which keeps you "on the go." Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) This Sunday night, ABC-TV is offering a two-hour tape replay of the day's Indianapolis 500, an event some consider a motorized loony display and others a legitimate sports contest.

But come Monday night, the Public Broadcasting Service will offer a far broader look at motor mania with "The Chrome-Plated Nightmare," a one-hour study of America's long love affair with the automobile.

Those who survive Memorial Day traffic might check out this show, though they're herewith warned it is uneven, gabby to a fault and never asks Detroit auto moguls to explain themselves or their wares.

As its title suggests, the program is pretty much of a raspberry directed primarily at the raised-fin, chrome-crazy, power-mad golden era of happy motoring—the mid-1950s to 1970.

It's a generally predictable inspection of the attitudes that led to that automotive mess, starting with the obligatory pilgrimage to Los Angeles, where the car is rumored to be king.

But there are some fine segments that offer considerable fuel for thought.

Flipping Cars Injure Five

Five people were injured in two auto accidents early Saturday morning when their cars left the roadway and flipped over.

Rusty Burris, 16, Route 1, Ashville, was admitted to Berger Hospital for treatment of a fractured ankle and jaw and injuries to his back after he and two companions were thrown from their car during a chase west of Circleville.

Sheriff's Deputy Lawrence Holt charged Burris with reckless operation.

According to his report, he was in pursuit of the Burris car Saturday at 12:20 a.m. on the Circleville-Westfall Rd., just south of Mill Rd., when the car went off the left side in a curve.

The car rolled over, throwing Burris and Jackie L. Pence, 18, 407 S. Pickaway St., and Leland Dowden, 18, 123 Pontious Lane, to the ground.

Miss Pence and Dowden were treated and released at Berger Hospital emergency room for bruises and abrasions.

The car, which was demolished, rolled 180 feet off the roadway.

Billy C. and Holiday O'Dell, 129 Pleasant St., both suffered minor injuries when their car sailed off Route 23 and the Route 22 overpass.

Mrs. O'Dell, driver of the car, said she fell asleep while driving south on Route 23 Saturday at 1:45 a.m.

The vehicle went off the right side of the road, hit the guard rail, and sailed 57 feet over the embankment, flipping end for end two times and landing on its top.

Mrs. O'Dell suffered contusions and abrasions and her husband was treated at Berger Hospital for a lacerated nose and scalp and contusions and abrasions.

William Swaney, 22, Williamsport, was treated for minor injuries when he lost control of his motorcycle on the Dawson-Yankeetown Rd. Friday at 10:30 p.m.

Swaney said he lost control in a curve and was thrown off the bike.

Deputies charge Ellis Ray Collins, 21, River Rouge, Mich., with failing to have a license on a U-Haul trailer following a minor accident Friday at 3:11 p.m. on Route 23 at the Darby Creek bridge.

According to the report, Collins drove off the right side of the road and hit the edge of the bridge with the car and trailer.

Neither he nor three passengers in the car were hurt.

Juvenile Court Hears Seven Traffic Cases

Cases this past week in Juvenile Court included hearings on seven traffic charges, six delinquent youths, four adults and two dependent-neglected children. One case was also dismissed during the week's docket.

Circleville Police Patrolman Joseph Stevenson filed charges of no license plates and no operator's license against David Allen Miller, 17, 370 Edwards Road. Judge Guy G. Cline suspended a $25 fine on the first charge and suspended Miller's license for six months. For driving without an operator's license, Miller was fined $50 with $25 suspended and another six month license suspension was imposed. He was ordered to pay the court costs in both cases and to attend traffic school.

Operating a motor vehicle without a valid operator's license was also the charge against John J. Aber, 17, 207½ W. Main St. He was given a $50 fine with $40 suspended. The court also ordered Aber to attend traffic school and ordered his license suspended for six months after he completed driver's training or his 18th birthday.

Ptl. D. A. Harrison of the State Highway Patrol filed charges of illegal passing within an intersection against Donald Allen Gibson, Route 3, Orient. A $10 fine was suspended by the court and Gibson was ordered to attend traffic school.

Seventeen-year-old Tommy A. Short, Route 1, Kingston, appeared on a charge of failure to signal filed by sheriff's deputy Earl Kuhn. The court suspended a $10 fine and suspended his license for one month. The court also ordered Short to attend traffic school and extended driving privileges for work only during the period of suspension.

Failure to yield the right of way brought a fine of $25 to William W. Lewis, 17, Jackson. The charge had been filed by Ptl. James Francis of the Circleville Police Department. The court suspended $15 of the fine and ordered Lewis to attend traffic school.

Joseph William Ehman, 16, Route 2, Orient, appeared before Judge Cline on a charge of reckless operation filed by sheriff's deputy James Deal. The youth received a $50 fine with $40 suspended and had his license suspended for one month. The court granted driving privileges for Ehman to drive to school only during the period of suspension and ordered him to attend traffic school.

A ten-month-old Circleville boy was ordered into the temporary care of the Pickaway County Children's Services after the court found him to be neglected. The mother of the child was placed on two years probation for neglecting the child and was ordered to make support payments for the child's care.

Another neglected child case involved a 17-year-old Orient girl who was ordered into the temporary care of

Vandals Rip Through City

Vandals were on the rampage Friday night in the city according to Circleville policeman Bill Pontious, who estimated the destruction at over $1,000. However more reports are still being received by police.

At the 1185 Lone Pine Rd. home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hosler, they soaped windows, littered the yard with toilet paper, broke down a tree, tore up the garden, broke tomato stakes, and trampled the yard and flower beds.

They also broke American Flags the Hoslers were planning to place at a cemetery for Memorial Day.

Similar damage was reported by James Harber, 423 Half Ave., and several other home owners on Half Ave.

At Harden's Chevrolet, they cut 20 tires, soaped windows, damaged seven outside mirrors, and damaged five vehicles.

Windows were soaped at Circleville Iron and Metal. Two trucks and a car were damaged at Main Glass. All the headlights and mirrors were broken and obscenities were scratched into the body of one of the vehicles.

Three juveniles were picked up by police when an anonymous tipster reported they were soaping windows on Cedar Heights Rd. at 11:41 p.m.

They were released after their parents agreed to make them clean up the damage.

the Children's Services.

Gary Shaffer, 19, and Henry Milton Oliver, 21, Route 8, Chillicothe, each received $100 fines with $50 suspended and a 60-day suspended jail sentence for contributing to the unruliness of a minor. Both men were also placed on probation for two years.

The same sentence was given to 19-year-old Jeanne Rapp, also for contributing to the unruliness of a minor.

Amy Grover, 19, 217 Watt St., was released on probation after charges had been filed against her for contributing to the unruliness of a minor. The court also ordered her not to associate with the girl in question or any other person under 18 years old.

One case was dismissed after the probationer has served his term.

Excessive absence charges were filed against an 18-year-old Circleville boy and a 17-year-old Lockbourne girl. The court suspended a 60-day term of detention and placed each of the youngsters on two-years probation.

Violation of probation chages were filed against a 17-year-old Circleville boy and a 16-year-old Circleville girl. The girl had been found guilty of home truancy. Probation was continued on both youths. The boy was sentenced to 60 days detention and the court suspended all but three days. One weekend detention was assigned to the girl.

A 15-year-old Circleville girl was placed on probation for two years after being found guilty of home truancy.

The final case before the court was a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle filed against a 17-year-old Commercial Point boy by sheriff's deputy Billy Hoffman. The court suspended all but one weekend of 60 days detention and placed him on probation for one year.

Juvenile Court Hears Seven Traffic Cases

Cases this past week in Juvenile Court included hearings on seven traffic charges, six delinquent youths, four adults and two dependent-neglected children. One case was also dismissed during the week's docket.

Circleville Police Patrolman Joseph Stevenson filed charges of no license plates and no operator's license against David Allen Miller, 17, 370 Edwards Road. Judge Guy G. Cline suspended a $25 fine on the first charge and suspended Miller's license for six months. For driving without an operator's license, Miller was fined $50 with $25 suspended and another six month license suspension was imposed. He was ordered to pay the court costs in both cases and to attend traffic school.

Operating a motor vehicle without a valid operator's license was also the charge against John J. Aber, 17, 207½ W. Main St. He was given a $50 fine with $40 suspended. The court also ordered Aber to attend traffic school and ordered his license suspended for six months after he completed driver's training or his 18th birthday.

Seventeen-year-old Tommy A. Short, Route 1, Kingston, appeared on a charge of failure to signal filed by sheriff's deputy Earl Kuhn. The court suspended a $10 fine and suspended his license for one month. The court also ordered Short to attend traffic school and extended driving privileges for work only during the period of suspension.

Failure to yield the right of way brought a fine of $25 to William W. Lewis, 17, Jackson. The charge had been filed by Ptl. James Francis of the Circleville Police Department. The court suspended $15 of the fine and ordered Lewis to attend traffic school.

Joseph William Ehman, 16, Route 2, Orient, appeared before Judge Cline on a charge of reckless operation filed by sheriff's deputy James Deal. The youth received a $50 fine with $40 suspended and had his license suspended for one month. The court granted driving privileges for Ehman to drive to school only during the period of suspension and ordered him to attend traffic school.

A ten-month-old Circleville boy was ordered into the temporary care of the Pickaway County Children's Services after the court found him to be neglected. The mother of the child was placed on two years probation for neglecting the child and was ordered to make support payments for the child's care.

Another neglected child case involved a 17-year-old Orient girl who was ordered into the temporary care of

Vandals Rip Through City

Vandals were on the rampage Friday night in the city according to Circleville policeman Bill Pontious, who estimated the destruction at over $1,000. However more reports are still being received by police.

At the 1185 Lone Pine Rd. home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hosler, they soaped windows, littered the yard with toilet paper, broke down a tree, tore up the garden, broke tomato stakes, and trampled the yard and flower beds.

They also broke American Flags the Hoslers were planning to place at a cemetery for Memorial Day.

Similar damage was reported by James Harber, 423 Half Ave., and several other home owners on Half Ave.

At Harden's Chevrolet, they cut 20 tires, soaped windows, damaged seven outside mirrors, and damaged five vehicles.

Two trucks and a car were damaged at Main Glass. All the headlights and mirrors were broken and obscenities were scratched into the body of one of the vehicles.

Three juveniles were picked up by police when an anonymous tipster reported they were soaping windows on Cedar Heights Rd. at 11:41 p.m.

They were released after their parents agreed to make them clean up the damage.

the Children's Services.

Gary Shaffer, 19, and Henry Milton Oliver, 21, Route 8, Chillicothe, each received $100 fines with $50 suspended and a 60-day suspended jail sentence for contributing to the unruliness of a minor. Both men were also placed on probation for two years.

The same sentence was given to 19-year-old Jeanne Rapp, also for contributing to the unruliness of a minor.

Amy Grover, 19, 217 Watt St., was released on probation after charges had been filed against her for contributing to the unruliness of a minor. The court also ordered her not to associate with the girl in question or any other person under 18 years old.

One case was dismissed after the probationer has served his term.

Excessive absence charges were filed against an 18-year-old Circleville boy and a 17-year-old Lockbourne girl. The court suspended a 60-day term of detention and placed each of the youngsters on two-years probation.

Violation of probation charges were filed against a 17-year-old Circleville boy and a 16-year-old Circleville girl. The girl had been found guilty of home truancy. Probation was continued on both youths. The boy was sentenced to 60 days detention and the court suspended all but three days. One weekend detention was assigned to the girl.

A 15-year-old Circleville girl was placed on probation for two years after being found guilty of home truancy.

The final case before the court was a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle filed against a 17-year-old Commercial Point boy by sheriff's deputy Billy Hoffman. The court suspended all but one weekend of 60 days detention and placed him on probation for one year.

Rotary Club Wins Photo Contest

The Rotary Club of Circleville is a winner in the 1973-74 Rotary World Photo Contest, Bob Woods, president of the club announced today.

The club was one of more than 1,000 Rotary clubs around the world entered and, as a winner, will receive $100 in prize money.

The club's winning photograph depicts the contest theme, "Rotary in Action." Prize money is being awarded to the club for use in the Rotary Service project.

Judging took place at Rotary International's headquarters in Evanston, Ill., by a panel of three Rotarians in the photography and media professions.

In 1960 the Circleville Rotary Club assumed the responsibility for the operation of the Red Cross Blood Program for Pickaway County.

This project was initiated by Rotarian Ed Grigg and during the past 14 years over 1500 pints of blood has been collected and much of this has been donated by Rotarians and their Rotary Anns. One has donated 10 gallons of blood.

In addition to donating blood, many of the Rotarians and Rotary Anns being doctors and nurses have volunteered their services in the operation of the program.

The winning picture shows the Blood Program Chairman Rotarian Phil Pfleeger being prepared to donate by Rotary Ann, Nurse Marilyn Johnson.
